

THE GUYRCOOK REPORT DOT PODBEAN DOT COM

Hi I'm Guy Cook this is The Guy R Cook Report I want to thank all the patrons for supporting The Guy R Cook Report that's a great thing that you do is you're appreciate it. The focus has been on slack this week and today we're going to talk about using slack for b2b these people that do communication with one another on their projects have a better time to delivery as a result might be because they're using slack and the people at codesign did a really good post and I've shared it in the show notes if you go to The Guy R Cook Report dot podbean dot com and see the the post title focus on how to use slack for b2b this year then you'll get to the links that we've got there there's a link to the post and in that post assist the slack is a cloud-based chat tool which allows you and your team to communicate and collaborate within one another so instead of having a cacophony of noise like you would with a normal mail stream or something like that you just have a slack group that's allocated and dedicated to that one task and that'll get it done I've included a link that started on the 13th of November in 2018 to be a live link for slack so you can kind of kick the tires if you will and that goes to the vdomain hosting slack group okay so give that a try I think you're gonna like it there's some big big companies that use it every day and so on that I'm going to conclude this episode of The Guy R Cook Report thanks for being with us today.

It's a wrap